COFFEE MARKET.

The coffee futures market was a quiet affair and the general trend of its prices was downward. Rio's break of 200 reis and reported sales of cheaper coffee depressed values, the opening being at 17 to 20 points decline. New Orleans importers were the principal sellers. The market closed at net declines of 17 to 19 points.

Very few offers were here from Santos and those from Rio were a shade lower. The local spot market was dull and unchanged.

GRAIN MARKET.

Receipts of corn at Western points over the holiday failed to come up to expectations and as a result there was no active buying, with market prices up at one time 75 to 100 points. Saturday's final quotations. With the May position out of the way the difference between cash corn and the late positions was more striking and the prevailing impression was that unless the movement should increase very materially the chances were the late month

Wheat should advance toward the cash level.

Receipts were 28,000 bags and stock 110,000 bags. Futures unchanged.
